

Title: "Agricultural Aid Application 4.0 – Ideas and concerns from farmers' perspective"

Speaker: Christian Gaebel

Organisation: German Farmers' Association (DBV)

In the context of the further development of the EU agricultural aid and, in particular, of the Integrated Administration and Control System (IACS), the DBV within its organisation is currently working on a concept or position for a clearly down slimmed agricultural aid application by exploiting the numerous technical chances and possibilities resulting from digitalisation. The focus is particularly on the long-term perspective. How, then, from the point of view of the farmers, an "Agricultural Aid Application 4.0" should look like, for example, in the year 2025? What conditions must be met by technology and politics? What are the main challenges for all stakeholders in the chain of the Integrated Administration and Control System (IACS)? Where are the barriers and what should be developed to simplify and slim down the aid application perceptible? These are questions that we want to answer from the point of view of the agricultural profession.
